The Greenville Bridge is a cable-stayed bridge over the Mississippi River, carrying U.S. 82 and U.S. 278 between Greenville, Mississippi, and Lake Village, Arkansas. When it opened in 2010, it was the fourth-longest cable-stayed bridge in North America.

John Caldwell
Transportation Commissioner
Northern District

"Highways, tourism and economic development are inextricably linked. Yet, it's our people that move us ahead."

Willie Simmons
Transportation Commissioner
Central District

"Whether you are traveling the recently widened U.S. 49 in Rankin County, the new I-20 eastbound bridge in Jackson or any of our freshly paved highways in the Delta or East Central Mississippi, we hope you have a safe, smooth and enjoyable ride through the Central District of our state."

Charles Busby
Transportation Commissioner
Southern District

"As a longtime resident of south Mississippi, I enthusiastically encourage you to explore this beautiful part of our state. Along the coast, U.S. 90 offers year-round, scenic views of the sparkling Gulf of Mexico, and further west, you can take in our state's rich history by following U.S. 61, the Blues Highway, to the riverside city of Natchez."

Every year, Mississippi spends more than $3.2 million picking up litter on our state's highways. This money could be used to build and repair roads and bridges to improve our state's infrastructure and economy. Don't trash Mississippi. Please put trash where it belongs, and remember to recycle whenever possible. It's not just a can or food wrapper you're throwing away. It's Mississippi's money.

Dear Friends,
Welcome to the Magnolia State! Elee and I are blessed to welcome you to Mississippi, our beloved home with a tremendous wealth of natural beauty, rich cultural traditions, and incredible food in every part of our state.
No matter where you're visiting from, I'm confident you'll enjoy our state's unique Southern charm. We're called the "Hospitality State" for good reason. Our people are as sweet as our tea, and our food comes freshly fried and in generous portions.
Whether you came here to enjoy the beauty of our nature trails, the charm of our small towns, the joy of our music, or the spirit of our sports teams, I'm confident that your entire family will enjoy your time.

Travel the Delta and experience the serenading music that set the foundation for blues, country, and rock 'n' roll. Cruise the Coast and enjoy the best seafood you'll ever have. Cross the state along the Trace and see the history from Natchez to Tupelo. Wade along the banks of the mighty Mississippi River and enjoy the hills of Vicksburg. Whatever you choose to do, I know it will be an unforgettable experience.
On behalf of my family and all Mississippians, we are honored to have you visit our home. I hope you enjoy your journey, have a wonderful time, and stay for a while! Sincerely,

Tate and Elee Reeves
Governor and First Lady, State of Mississippi
